Stage Annual Mock Parliament Tonight In Union Ballroom

McGill And Université De Montréal Participate In Speaking Contest

MANCHUKUO TOPIC

Arthur Marshall Leads Government; Opposed By Hon. John MacLeish

With the annual McGill-Université de Montréal Mock Parliament to be held this evening at 8.15 in the Union Ballroom, The Debating Union Society stages one of its public events of the season 1932-1933. These Mock Parliaments have usually had a great success in the past and the topic up for discussion tonight is "Resolved, That this House regrets that England, the United States and France have not taken steps to prevent Japan's encroachment upon China."

The Government forces will be led by the Prime Minister, the Right Honorable Arthur J. Marshall and he will be opposed by the Rt. Honorable John A. MacLeish, leader of the Opposition. The McGill cabinet members number eight members of Parliament. The representative for Montreal St. Edwards The Honorable K. M. C. MacIntyre will occupy the post of Minister for Occidental Affairs. The M.P. for Winnipeg Circumference, the Hon. E. S. Reed will act as Minister for Interior Undertakings, while the Hon. Clarence Gross, Westmount, will perform the duties of Minister for Oriental Affairs.

Other Ministers

The Hon. Samuel Irvine Brenhouse, M.P. for St. Amable will be Minister of Finance and his colleague, the Hon. Malcolm Ransom from St. Lambert (Continued on Page 4)

Affirmative Awarded Decision In Debate

Goldfine And Burt Defeat Shecter And Shepherd

EDUCATION TOPIC

Union Music Room Scene Of Forensic Clash Yesterday

An affirmative verdict was rendered by the audience in favor of Marvyn Goldfine and J. Burt who defeated John Shecter and Myer Shecter in a debate upon the motion: "Resolved, That a University Education justifies itself in the light of the present crisis." The debate was a regular bi-monthly fixture of the Junior Debating League and was staged in the Union Music Room yesterday afternoon.

The first speaker for the affirmative, J. Burt, Arts '36, stated that a University Education is very important; it is almost essential for admission in the Church, and many positions are open only to college graduates. The bulk of college grads is made up of professional men who on the whole succeed fairly well, and are very useful. The average college student after his graduation earns from $4,000 to $7,500.

Speaks for Negative

Myer Shecter, Arts '36, who was the first speaker for the negative, stated that there were at present too many University men. People, he said, lived better before there were so many graduates. "Science has advanced, but," he asked, "what good has it done?" Some jobs are open only to graduates, but even they cannot get them.

Marvyn Goldfine, Arts '35, then took up the case for the affirmative and opened his discussion of the subject by saying that this crisis was due to man's weaknesses and education can (Continued on Page 2)

"My Religion"

The second in the series of luncheon lectures on "My Religion" will take place today at 1.00 in the Union. The speaker will be Rev. Noel Palmer. All men students are invited to attend, the cost of the lunch being 40 cents.

McGill Film Coming

A film showing various phases of McGill campus life is to be shown at local theatres soon. The film is one of a series covering the outstanding universities of the continent and is made by Educational Film Exchanges Ltd. It is intended to counteract popular views of college life.

Ottawa Conference Subject Of Papers At Economics Club

HENRY SCHAFHAUSEN and Maurice Boxer will be the speakers at the next meeting of the Political Economy Club this Thursday evening, when the Ottawa Conference and the coming World Conference will be discussed. As usual the meeting will be held in the Smoking Room of the Arts Building commencing at 8.30 and all students of Economics are welcome.

Schafhausen is a fourth year honor student in Economics and Political Science, and is also President of the Foreign Affairs Club. He will deal with the Ottawa Conference, criticizing or approving its provisions in detail. He will also attempt to prophesy what will take place at the World Economic Conference which is soon to be held. Boxer will deal with the historical side of the subject, touching on the work of past conferences, and what they have accomplished.

Arts Dean Talks At Sophomore Banquet

Crowd of Forty Attends Arts '35 Festivity In Union Lounge

Several toasts, and a speech by Dean Ira A. MacKay were the outstanding features of the Arts '35 dinner held in the Union Lounge last night. The festivity was attended by a crowd of approximately forty students. The first toast, that to the King, was proposed by Arnold L. Johnson, the President of the Class. Eli C. Kelloway then proposed a toast to the University.

"There are five classes of students at McGill," stated Dean MacKay in his speech. "The first made up of those who obtain very high marks in all their subjects; the second group (Continued on Page 2)

Principal Invited To Attend Annual Laval Festival In Quebec

Though Unable to Go Will Be Represented By Col. Bovey

TAKES PLACE THURSDAY

Invitation Stresses Cordial Relation Between Sister Universities

"I sincerely appreciate the invitation for Thursday next but cannot go myself. Colonel Bovey will represent me," stated Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of the University yesterday, referring to an invitation received from L'Association Generale des Etudiants de Laval. In this he was asked to attend the Annual Festival of Laval Students being held in Quebec this coming Thursday.

This invitation, the first which has been extended to McGill by the particular group is regarded, in official circles, as a mark of honor from the sister university and as such it will be officially recognized. The Laval Festival, which is an annual event, is regarded by students of that university as one of the highlights of the year.

Today Last Chance For Aspiring Poets

Musical Association Hopes For Novel Marches

Today is the closing date for the McGill March and Song competition which has been conducted by the McGill Musical Association for the purpose of obtaining one really good McGill march and several Students' Songs to be used at football and hockey games by the University Band and also at smokers and pep rallies.

Because of the fact that McGill has never really had a good marching song and as all the students' songs such as "James McGill" and "Put on Your Red and White Sweater" have borrowed tunes it was considered by the Association that a contest such as this was the best possible method of raising the standard of McGill songs.

To further this end and to encourage competition two prizes valued at $25 each are being offered for the best March and song received. It is pointed out, however, that the contestants, all of whom are members of the staff, graduates or undergraduates, are submitting entries not as prize-seekers but as contributors to (Continued on Page 3)

Manoeuvres Held At Pte. Claire Sunday

Won Hockey Game Against Locals, 4-2

Early Sunday morning about 50 members of the Corps embussed at their headquarters on University St. and rode to Pointe Claire, P.Q., in order to give the certificate candidates practice in platoon and section leading.

When the debussing point was reached, a defense party was selected and immediately sent ahead, while a van guard platoon under Lieut. Turner moved towards Ste. Genevieve and was successful in forcing the opposition to retire.

In the afternoon, the platoon under the command of Lieut. Grimson carried out an attack on a ridge which was held by the enemy. The party then retired to the Maples Hotel, at Lakeside, where Major Patton organized a hockey team to meet the local all-star group. The red and white representatives led by Hildy Carlisle, the clever puck-chaser, upheld McGill's reputation with a 4-2 victory. Dinner was then served at the hotel, after which Col. Buchanan and Major Pennell made a few remarks on the day's tactical exercises. Later in the evening returned to the city, everybody quite satisfied with their outing.

Group Of Players Present Arnald's "Ghost Train" Soon

ARNALD R. Daley's "The Ghost Train," popular light play, will be presented by a group of actors, many of whom are McGill undergraduates or graduates, in Victoria Hall, Westmount, tomorrow week at 8.15 p.m. Tickets, priced 50 cents, are now on sale.

"The Ghost Train," while one of the most popular plays of recent years, is best known to the Canadian public by the motion picture of that name which appeared in the city recently, starring several well-known actors and actresses. In this form is scored a decided success.

The play is being produced under the auspices of the I.O.D.E., Victoria Rifles Chapter and the proceeds from the ticket sale will be devoted to charitable purposes. Tickets may be obtained from members of the chapter or from the director, Mr. John F. Cameron, PLateau 2588.

Graduates To Hold Smoker In Union

George MacDonald New McGill Governor To Address Meeting

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

Smoker Open To All Graduates Of The University

Mr. George C. MacDonald will be the principal speaker at the annual Graduates' Smoker which is to be held in the McGill Union on February 2, at 8.30. He is a newly elected governor of the university, president of the Students' Advisory Board, and was prominent in undergraduate activities as a student. The program which is to be an interesting and varied one will begin with some march selections played by the McGill Band, followed by songs sung by the Glee Club.

Three other speakers will be asked to address the meeting: Mr. P. D. Ross, president of the Graduates' Society, Mr. G. Pitts, president of the Montreal Branch and Mr. Stirling Maxwell, president of the Red Birds Ski Club.

After this a buffet supper will be served to the strains of the McGill Band. Cigarettes are to be freely (Continued on Page 2)

"Hints To Debaters" Is Subject Of Talk To Unemployed Men

J. A. Edmison, Member Of Junior Board Of Trade, Is Speaker

ISSUES WARNINGS

Advocates Study Of Opponents' Points For Rebuttal

"Debating has been coming to the fore during the past five or six years, and the reason is not difficult to find. It is interesting in itself, it encourages the free discussion of important problems and current events, and it is a very excellent training for those who aspire to be public speakers," said Mr. J. A. Edmison in speaking before the white-collar unemployed yesterday at 4.00 p.m. in Strathcona Hall.

After prefacing his remarks, Mr. Edmison went on to outline the points which go to make up a good debate. Firstly, the prime requisites in the arrangement of a debate, such as drafting of resolutions, number of speakers, speaking time of each debater, method of judging, and voting procedure, were pointed-out.

Positive Resolutions

Resolutions, said Mr. Edmison, should always be drafted in the affirmative. Such words as "not" ought never to be used in the resolution. There should be four speakers, and the first speaker for the affirmative should, according to convention, be the leader of his side. In a similar manner the last speaker for the negative should be the leader of his side.

The judging of a debate should be done on the basis of a hundred points. Fifty points to be given for delivery, and fifty for the material and its arrangement in the debate. When the (Continued on Page 2)

Clubs To Sponsor Grand Carnival Ball

Will Be Held On Monday February 27th

Plans are now definitely under way for a grand carnival ball to be given by various language organizations at McGill, under the sponsorship of the German Club.

This affair will be the first of its kind on the Campus, and will be a medium for bringing the various campus organizations together in a magnificent outbreak of jollity.

The Spanish Club of McGill, the Society Francaise, the Cercle Francais, the English Literature Society, as well as the German Club, have all expressed the greatest enthusiasm for the scheme. It is proposed that the members of the various language societies shall come in costumes appropriate to the countries they represent, or as characters in the literature and history of their countries.

The date for the Carnival has been definitely set for February 27, and will take place at one of the outstanding private clubs in Montreal. The price (Continued on Page 3)

Glee Club Will Give Concert This Week

R.V.C. To Be Scene Of Saturday Performance

On Saturday, February 4th, in the Royal Victoria College, the McGill Glee Club, assisted by Howard S. Simpson's Orchestra will give a public concert under the direction of Louis C. Theobald. The personnel also includes W. Stanley Archibald, the manager of the Club and Ralph M. Carmichael who performs the duties of president.

The programme will include amongst other numbers a piano solo by Howard Simpson, the Volga Boatmen's Song, the Bells of St. Mary and other pieces well-known to McGill audiences, such as the Hall Alma Mater, Marshall Bartholomew's arrangements of "Keep in the Middle of the Road" and "Old Man Noah" will also be featured. A quartette composed of Harbert, Carmichael, Freeman and Theobald will render varied selections, while interludes of Dance Music will be provided by Howard Simpson's Privates.

Lecture Series

Another in the special series of lectures entitled "The development of Jewish Thought" will be given by Dr. Yehudah Kaufman in the Mount Royal Hotel tomorrow night.

Farmer And Cunningham Each Score Two Goals

Farmer Plays Great Game, Getting Three Points In All — Cunningham Shines For Blue Team With Two Un-assisted Tallies — Marquess of Zetland Faces Puck — Victory Over U. of M. Will Give McGill Championship.

DEFEATING Varsity 4-2 after three periods of bitterly fought hockey McGill practically eliminated the Blue team from the race for the Intercollegiate title as the Redmen are now tied with the Torontonians for the lead and have one game to play while Frank Sullivan's charges have completed their schedule. Kenny Farmer covered himself with glory in last night's contest, scoring two goals and getting an assist as well, to turn in one of the best performances witnessed this season. Farmer turned the tide early in the second period when the teams were battling to break a 1-1 tie by travelling the length of the ice alone for the nicest goal of the evening and then passing to Tommy Robertson 15 seconds later to give the Red team a two goal advantage.

Marquess Faces Puck

The Marquess of Zetland, who attended the match as guest of Sir Arthur Currie, faced the puck at the commencement of the game and was given a splendid ovation by the large crowd which witnessed the contest.

Dr. Bell's squad looked much better than Varsity on the night's play and showed that they were capable of almost every kind of hockey. The first session was filled with excitement though the play was somewhat ragged. Penalties galore were meted out by the officials throughout the sixty minutes and several times the teams were short two and three men.

The brand of hockey improved greatly toward the end and late in the third period the Redmen were unleashing a fast passing attack that kept Shipp hopping in the Toronto cage. Varsity lacked the smoothness displayed by McGill but were by no means completely outclassed. Don Smilie and his mates waged a stiff battle all the way but suffered severely through penalties.

Dewar Bad Man

"Skin" Dewar was the bad-man of the match and spent thirteen minutes with the timers for his over-zealous tactics. Varsity received thirteen penalties while McGill were the recipients of nine. One major was handed out. Dewar having a minor penalty increased for talking back to Referee Dave Campbell. Several minor flare-ups took place but no serious damage was done as the officials quickly banned all potential scrapper.

Dewar's rough work gave McGill an opportunity before the match was five minutes old, when he was penalized for charging Farquharson. The Blue defence was taking a lot of steam out of the McGill attacks and Frank Shipp made two smart saves before Hughie Farquharson finally found the net, converting Jack, McGill's pass from close in. Excitement raged high as the Redmen continued to press around the Blue citadel. Several times the red-shirted players looked to be on the point of scoring but their shots were wide.

Win Cunningham tied the count eight minutes after the first goal had been scored, battling the puck past Maurice Powers from a free-off drive. (Continued on Page 4)

Freshmen In Arts Plan Class Dinner

Professor Evans to Be Guest At Meal Before Hockey Game

The executive of the Class of Arts '36, have decided to hold the Class dinner on Friday night at 6.15 in the Union. This dinner has been planned for some time and it is expected that a large number of the classmen will be present.

The price of the dinner is to be 55 cents, payable at the door. Reservations are now being taken and may be handed in to any member of the executive of the Class of Arts '36 or at Bill Gentleman's Office.

The Executive has arranged an entertaining programme, a well-known pianist has been obtained and Professor Evans has promised to be present. After the dinner the freshmen plan to proceed to the McGill-Columbia hockey game. As this is a home game coupons will be accepted, hence the whole evening will be inexpensive and entertaining.

It is expected that each member of the class attending the dinner will wear red and white ribbons, thus helping with the decorations of the room and lending a college spirit to the support of the game afterwards.

Law Professor Will Talk To Labor Club

Scott To Deal With Radicals At Meeting Tonight

"Law for Radicals" will be the topic dealt with by Professor F. R. Scott, of the Faculty of Law, of McGill, at the first 1933 meeting of the Labor Club on Friday evening at eight o'clock in Strathcona Hall. The speaker has earned himself a reputation as a clear and interesting speaker, and is thoroughly acquainted with his subject.

Professor Scott is one of the founders of the League for Social Reconstruction, an organization similar to a certain extent to the Fabian Society of England. He takes a vivid interest in labor movements and politics in Canada; he is also one of the original organizers of the McGill Labor Club.

The executive of the club cordially extends its invitation to members and friends of the group. A special appeal is made to the members who are urged to be present, as this meeting, being the first of the year will be concerned with many matters of vital importance.

"Reg" Newton

THE announcement of the death of Reginald S. Newton, of third year Civil Engineering, comes as a severe shock to his friends at McGill. He was one of the McGill's most popular undergraduates and this year was elected by his fellow students in Engineering as their representative on the Students' Council. To his relatives and friends the "Daily" tenders its sincere condolences.

College "Parrots"

CONSIDERABLE agitation for "honor systems" for examinations is prevalent in several universities to the south of us. To overcome the possibility of copying Mr. Gordon Barclay of Syracuse University suggests that "the questions should be so comprehensive, requiring theme-like answers, that copying would make no difference."

We believe that there is another benefit to be derived from a set of questions such as Mr. Barclay suggests. It would do much to rid the campuses of universities of a group of students popularly known as "parrots." The Oxford Concise Dictionary defines a "parrot" as a "person who repeats another's words or imitates his actions unintelligently." By means of a prodigious memory and an ability to choose "soft" courses, this type of student manages to slip through enough courses to gain a degree and pose before the world as "one with a higher education, my dear." It is just this type of "poseur" that discredits a college education in the eyes of those who are prone to criticism.
Too often college professors are open to the same criticism . . . if so can more be expected of students.

Maps

MORE information may be stored on one square foot of map than in numerous volumes of an encyclopedia. Mapping is one of the essential factors in the development of a nation.

In order to compile maps it is necessary to survey territory. As these surveys are extremely expensive and cover a long period requiring the expenditure of much money and the use of many types of equipment they are best carried out by governments.

Perhaps the best surveyed country in the world is Great Britain. The Ordnance Survey of that country has been in operation for many years. As a result it is possible to obtain maps of almost any desired scale for any imaginable district in England, Wales or Scotland.

The Government of this Dominion has not been backward in realizing that the country needs accurate maps, particularly of unsettled districts, and has worked often under restrained circumstances, to furnish the people with reliable information.

One of the most accurate series of maps published in Canada is issued by the Department of National Defence. These maps, while only covering a limited area, show a wealth of detail. By referring to one of them it is possible to ascertain how many houses, what kind of tree, the topographical features or the type of road found in any given locality.

For a number of years the Department of the Interior has been publishing a series of maps covering the southern part of our land. More recently it has entered upon the task of surveying the unsettled regions to the north, with the idea of making a new map of Canada. This map would conform to the International Map of the World as planned by the International Geographical Committee.

The government has been assisted in this work by the use of airplanes, by means of which it is now possible to survey larger areas in a more accurate manner and in a shorter time than heretofore.

It is a pity that the strained financial conditions under which the government is working at present should cause much of this valuable work to be postponed, and it is hoped that the return of better times will see the continuation of this work.
This is a worthwhile service as it enables the citizens to find out exactly what any part of our land looks like with a minimum of expense and trouble.

COSMO- POLITANA

HITLER'S accession to the Chancellorship is not a bolt from the blue; it is merely the summation of political jiggling and manoeuvring which began last summer when the Fascist party first reached the peak of its power. It can really be said that Hindenburg was merely preparing the background during the time that he kept the fiery brand of German politics from the position to which the German electorate voted him.

Let us follow the details, and examine the real extent of Hitler's powers at the present time.

After the summer elections, it was obvious that it was only a matter of time until Hitler would be called to the chancellorship. In a miniature coup d'etat, the control of the Prussian police, numbering 90,000, was brought under the German government. This is the largest single military organization in Germany. At first, the suspicion arose that this strength would be pitted against the Fascist party, but subsequent facts belied this.

In the meantime there was the political juggling of Hindenburg, who in vain tried to stave off the inevitable. First one, then another of the political giants was asked to take control, but none could successfully ward off the pressure of the parliamentary strength of the Hitlerites. All this time Hitler was going about the country promising his supporters that he would take "all or nothing"; he persisted in his vitriolic attacks on the government, on foreign countries, and on the scheme of society as it exists in Germany. He was a revolu-tionist in words, even if he lacked the courage to use arms in the achievement of his ambitions. By his tactics he antagonized European statesmen, who coupled his name with the repudiation of the covenants of the Treaty of Versailles, and with the cessation of the payments of Germany's external debts. It must be remembered that last summer the world was not in the mood to listen to such talk on the debt situation, since they were still coddled by the sentiment of the Hoover Memorandum.

In the meantime, at Lausanne, Europe offered a settlement of Germany's war debts at 3,000 million Reichsmarks, payable at 180 million Reichmarks a year. This figure was very low, the total sum being slightly more than one single payment under the original Dawes Plan. The ratification of this settlement was left until after the elections in the United States, to enable Europe to seek equivalent terms from the creditor nation.

Hindenburg must have realized that with fiery Hitler in power, the plan would be jeopardized, and he did his utmost to keep him away from power. He proposed to do his best to get for Germany the honourable settlement of Lausanne. He had little fear of military tactics on the part of the Fascists, since he had an organized army and the Prussian police force to back him.

Von Papen and von Schleicher in turn tried to continue Hindenburg's policies against a hostile Reichstag. Time was gained to see the reception of the Lausanne agreements in the White House, and time was working to shatter the unity of the Fascist party.

In December there was a secession from the party. The compromise element was tired of the antics of Hitler, who still persisted in "all or nothing." Hindenburg offered the Chancellorship to Hitler, who refused because of the restrictions which the president wanted to place on the office. Hitler was still fiery, and showed no notions of compromise.

In the last session of the Reichstag before Christmas, there was proposal to amend the constitution of the Republic, altering the course of succession to the presidency in the event of the death of the president. Formerly the Chancellor took power, the proposal was to admit the Chief Justice into the position, pending a new election. No action was taken on this, but it was obvious that the road was being paved for Hitler, and undesirable elements were being removed.

But the Reichstag could not be permanently thwarted. Hitler's plurality, though weakened, was still formidable; Hitler could not be excluded from power.

On Friday, the status quo was shattered. By an act of Fate, the French Government fell on the same day. Previous to this, Roosevelt's sympathies were analysed as not favouring the pacts at Lausanne; the dyke which Hindenburg had erected was no longer necessary. Hitler was the only man who could possibly command a parliamentary majority, and Hitler achieved the goal of his ambitions. This time he was not hesitant. He jettisoned his "all or nothing" doctrine, and grabbed what he could.
He was hungry for power, and half a loaf, he considered, was better than none.

The cabinet with which Hindenburg burdened Hitler will allow little action on the part of the Chancellor. Hitler is nominally Chancellor, the strength is the cabinet which is hostile to him. Hitler will find it impossible to carry out any of his schemes for social or monetary reorganization.

On the horizon is the forthcoming nip-and-tuck game, — with Hitler attempting to consolidate his position in the cabinet, and the cabinet trying to maintain Hitler as a mere figure-head, so that they can carry out their own program behind the shield of a parliamentary majority.

All in all, Hitler will be weakened by his power.
He is unable to carry out his platform, but still, Germany will know him as the Chancellor. After a few months, people will point to him as delinquent in his duties, since the program of Germany will not change with him at the helm. People will say that as a destructive critic, he can make a great deal of noise, but from the constructive angle, he could achieve nothing.

There is some talk of his suppression of the Communist party. It is impossible to see how he can do this. The Prussian police force, freed from the control of the sympathetic Prussian government is at the beck and call of Minister of Defence of the German Republic. Though this man is sitting in Hitler's cabinet, his former actions point to no strong-arm action against the Communists.

Hitler appears as the bloom on the flower, but the stem is ready to bend at the first opportunity.

After the dean of Western Reserve had distributed diplomas to his graduating M.D.'s a woman in the audience faints. The dean arose and in a loud voice asked: "Is there a doctor in the house?"

SUNDRY VERSE

Brute: A Study in Reincarnation
By R. M. H.

Down in the swampy wood,
Knowing the hunting good, Soft, as a hunter would,
Softly I tread.
I, in the setting sun,
Trudged on with heavy gun
Far, far from everyone Even from God.

There! In that leafy copse Taking two jaunty hops
See that white light that stops,
Showing . . . a hare!
Watch him (in lush retreat Furtive and nimble) eat Watercress, green and sweet, Flourishing there.

Slowly I aimed and . . . shot.
The loud, lead bullet, hot Seared through the air and . . . caught His snowy back.
Mute though all hares I deemed,
Muter than mice, he screamed A death scream; and he seemed Torn on a rack.

Up to my knees I fell
Up to my knees in Hell
Up to my knees: that yell Rooted me fast.
Knee deep to Hell I sank
Into a swampy blank
Into a slime that stank
In feld mass.

Up to my knees a loss, Foundering deep in tross
Of tendril, wort, mud-moss, Fungus, and root,
Felt then my brackish blood Fuse with the cess-pool mud, Grafting my flesh to sod, Compounding brute . . .

. . . brute dullness, Far-off yell.

The Dancers

Hushed was the hall, the strains of waltz had died;
And by its death was lost its haunting spell.
The dancing feet had ceased their measured glide;
A moment's hush—then voices rose and fell.
But two there were, who, deep in lovers' bliss, Knew not the termination of the air—
Eyes, bright with love, could notice naught amiss.
—His dark head bent close o'er her golden hair.

They danced,—but ah, they did not dance to strains
Of instruments made by a mortal's hand;
Their pulsing hearts had burst all earthly chains.
They swayed to music of another land.
A music made by souls that love has bound;
A love that's music, a music that is love.
A harmony of spirit—blessed sound!
It cometh from within,—and from above.

To this they danced; but bodies are of clay;
The charm was shattered ere it held them long.
They blushed in shame, and looked round in dismay,
As if to miss the noise of man were wrong.
Be happy, both! For he who love's tune hears,
—Ethereal melody—should happy be.
More lovely than the music of the spheres
Is that which is the soul's own symphony.

—FILO.

Ode

A level mind in times of stress Remember always to maintain,
As well in times of happiness
From joy o'erbearing to refrain, O Dellius, Dellius, doomed to death, Whether in gloom you pass the time,
Or while at rest in verdant health,
Through festal days you drink old wine, Why strive the pine and poplar white
The hospitable shade to weave,
And why do gushing waters fight
Their winding path in haste to cleave?
Bid someone wines and ointments bring
And short-lived blooms or roses, now, While Youth, Fortune and the Black String Of the Three Sisters will allow,
Soon you will leave your bought domain,
Your home that bath'd by Tiber bold,
And soon your worthless heir shall gain
Your high-heaped piles of gleaming gold.
Whether from old Inachus born
You live in wealth, or rear'd in stress
You pass a lowly life forlorn—
You fall to Death who's pitiless.
One way we go; the lot of all The grim urn shakes, that soon will send —When Fate decrees its turn to fall—
Us on a voyage that ne'er will end.

From the Latin Ode of Perce — A.L.B.

Open remuneration to football players was recently urged in an editorial in the Columbia operating under the present system, football be recognized as a legislative probe of university athletics.

'Hints to Debaters' is Subject Of Talk to Unemployed Men

audience votes on a resolution, the chairman should announce that the vote is to be taken on the merit of the debaters and not on the truth or fallacy of the resolution. Mr. Ed-mison also pointed out that the leader of the losing team is the man to move a vote of thanks to the judges, and the leader of the winning team should second it.

No Religious References

Continuing his lecture, Mr. Edmison gave some good advice to people who would become successful debaters. His first warning was the one about using religious or biblical references in a debate. The bible has so many interpretations put upon it that it is very hard to pick the right one unless the speaker is debating before a group whose religious views are known. Sarcastic remarks about the opposite side are also bad policy in a debate, as it alienates the audience. Another point which was stressed by Mr. Edmison, and which seems to crop up in every debate, is the one about calling the opponents by their names. This is a practice which should be very carefullly avoided.

Reading a speech is also bad form, according to Mr. Edmison, as the judges are not usually inclined to favour the man who reads his speech.
In addition, the debater should not take himself or the debate too seriously, remembering that the opponent may be talking against his own convictions. Neither would a good debater take up too much time in asserting that the other side has not proved its point, unless he can substantiate his statements.

Study Opposition's Points

In preparing his speech, a debater should study the points for the other side, and should compile his material in such a way as to get the better of his opponents, continued Mr. Edmison.
The points in the speech should be first stated, and then elaborated upon, too much time should, however, not be spent on one point in the debate, unless it be the mainstay of the speech.
Rebuttals should be short, concise,
and should sum up all the points brought forward by the affirmative side during the course of the debate.
No new material is to be brought in into the rebuttal, and the task of rebutting is conventionally assigned to the leader of the affirmative, although any other of the speakers may do it.

In concluding, Mr. Edmison stated that a debater should never question the decision of the judges. It was also announced that the debating society for the unemployed which was launched last week, has acquired a membership of fifty at its first meeting.

debating among Canadian students, an activity which the association feels has been somewhat neglected in the past.

After their debate here the Mar-timers will proceed to the Universities of Toronto and Western Ontario, where they will debate against other picked teams. At the same time, as this tour, a representative team from Western and Varsity will be debating in the Maritimes. The team will be composed of Isobel Jordan, of Toronto, and Margery Rean, of Western,
and they will debate at Dalhousie, Acadia, Mount Allison and the University of New Brunswick.

Become Fixture

It is the hope of those who are sponsoring this scheme that the inter-university tours will become a regular feature of the college year and that universities throughout the country will take part in the schedules.

The debates on Friday will be judged by Miss MacKenzie, of the Montreal High School; Canon A. P. Shafford and Mr. A. Bruneau. The public is invited to attend.

The average attendance at the numerous public appearances of the Band this year has been thirty-nine, the largest for many years. Awards for faithful attendance at practices and public appearances were made to twelve members. This year has been one of the best that the Band has enjoyed, both from a numerical and a financial point of view.

This spring the Band will lose about half its members by graduation and next year will have to fill its depleted ranks with new men. A special drive for new members is expected to be made about registration time.

The Band fills an important need in the life of the University—it takes a

L'ASSOCIATION GENERALE DES ETUDIANTS DE LAVAL wishes to extend you, and to all the officials of McGill University, a most cordial invitation to attend our festival which as usual, will not fail to be interesting.

The honor of your presence is most sincerely desired, but in the event that it is impossible for you to attend, it is hoped that you will delegate someone in your stead.

In as much as it is always our wish to maintain and improve, if possible, the closest and friendliest relations with sister universities, we wish to lay great stress upon a large attendance from McGill, assuring you that nothing will be left undone to make your visit a very pleasant one.
May we hope from you an answer to a toast. If it is so, please answer by telegram "Collect" at Laval.

Anticipating a favorable reply assuring us of your visit to Laval and attendance at our Banquet, I remain, Yours very respectfully,

were the speaker's concluding remarks.
The toast to the Sophomore class was

Engineering Scores Over Commercial In Interfaculty Tilt

Commerce II Puck Team Barely Wins Over Strong Arts I Aggregation

BOTH GAMES 1-0

THE sudden drop in the weather may not be welcome to the thrifty housekeeper but it certainly proved a blessing to the local hockeyists, who were able to complete a hockey game without having to borrow a fishing-rod to draw the puck out of a deep pool of water. In the feature games played on the tennis-court rink yesterday, Commerce II defeated Arts I, 1-0 in the interclass league while Engineering downed Commerce by a like score in the interfaculty.

Wally Markham, who came to the rescue of his team last year by blossoming forth as an efficient goaltender, is the main reason why the Frosh failed to enter the scoring column. He turned aside all shots with ease and as the Business men scored once, late in the second period, when Gregson netted the puck on a pass from Daddon, Arts had to admit defeat. The Commerce team is an extremely versatile one, featuring Jack Bishop, senior football end, and Frank Gorman, well-known newspaperman.

Christie Scores

The Plumbers went to the fore in the interfaculty league when they turned in a hard-won victory over Commerce. This game also resulted in a goalless battle, Forbes and Mace making some brilliant saves at times. Christie placed his team ahead midway through the second period from a scramble in front of the nets. The Businessmen made desperate efforts to come back on an even footing but Mace was impregnable in goal.

Ski Club Of Great Britain Creates Branch At McGill

Peter Renold To Act As Representative For Season

AS a further indication of the recognition of McGill skiers as some of the foremost participants in the popular winter sport, the Ski Club of Great Britain, a familiar name on the other side of the Atlantic to skiing enthusiasts, has elected to establish a branch of their organization at McGill University. A letter addressed to the Winter Outing Club was lately received, which suggested that some member of the University be appointed to act as the official representative of the McGill branch. As all the Red skiers who recently returned from competitive activities on the other side became members while in St. Moritz, Peter Renold, one of the team, has undertaken to carry out the executive position of the club for the 1933 season.

Several facilities are offered by the Club to McGill students who desire to become members. An annual subscription of 10 shillings (about $2.50) constitutes the entrance fee, and includes some of the best literature on progressive skiing; the Yearly Handbook, and the three "Ski Notes and Queries," dealing fully with the events of the year, snowcraft, and new inventions. Further information about the Club may be obtained from the official representative, Peter Renold of Eng. III.

WITH THE MCGILL SKIERS IN SWITZERLAND

By STIRLING MAXWELL

President Red Birds Ski Club in Charge of Party

ALL of a sudden there was a crash of cymbals and a terrific din from the platform as a full grown brass band struck up, and looking out we saw that the platform was alive with people, all yelling and dancing around like crazy men. The entire Oxford and Cambridge contingent, having dined exceedingly well, had donned ski boots over dinner jackets and raced down the hill in wild disorder carrying torches, Roman candles and fireworks. This was our welcome... one fit for a king. We were herded out looking very stupid and dazed, paraded before a photographer and piled into a sleigh resembling very much the Montreal "round the mountain" variety of street car with rising tiers of seats, except that this one was piled high with buffalo robes, garlanded with great bunches of flowers and drawn by four fiery steeds. The parade was on... the brass band, the "Santa Claus" sleigh, the howling mob, torches, fireworks, and Alex Keiller, strongly suspected of instigating the whole thing having the time of his life. Up and up through the village we wound, as amazed villagers stood open mouthed and old ladies in night attire threw up their windows to see what was the cause of the infernal commotion. We drew up in front of the Hotel Kulm, and having forced a McGill yell from our weary lungs, shook hands with Herr Jansen, the genial proprietor, and took shelter in the interior of his hospitable establishment.

The Canadians had arrived and all St. Moritz knew about it. The management of the Kulm tendered a dinner to Oxford, Cambridge and McGill on Christmas night at which we were formally welcomed to St. Moritz by Mr. Jansen and Mr. Keiller, and being a holiday, the process of getting acquainted was carried far into the night. The following day we witnessed a jumping competition held by the Alpina Club.

St. Moritz is more than 6,000 feet above sea level, and as everyone was affected by the rare atmosphere, and wore weary from travel, we kept our skis for 48 hours, getting acclimatized by strolling around the village on foot. On the third day, an easy slalom practice was held, followed the next day by a tour around the Oxford-Cambridge Langlauf course, after which training began in earnest. Several of us had the privilege of going down the bob-sleigh run, and a very thrilling experience it was. On December 30th the 3S Club held an "unseen slalom," which differs from the conventional race inasmuch as competitors are started from the top without having the opportunity of studying the flags, which are concealed behind natural objects as far as possible. The team entered this for practice and made a very creditable showing.

The British Langlauf Championship was held on December 31st just five days after we had started skiing, and although the men were still in the early stages of training, the five undergraduates and Pangman were entered, but were given definite instructions not to extend themselves beyond a reasonable limit. The course was a full 18 kilometre over fairly level country, rather in the open, and relieved by fairly easy climbs and descents on bush trails. The result was an overwhelming victory for Canada, four out of the first five runners being Canadians. Campbell ran a magnificent race in 1:41:59-2:5 to finish ahead of Ross Wilson of the Canadian Olympic team. Roger Bushell, running for South Africa, was third, more than four minutes behind the winner, and was closely followed by Harry Pangman and Bill Ball. F. J. Walter, England, was sixth, exactly one second ahead of Jack Houghton.

The official results are as follows:

1.—Campbell, Canada.....	1:41 59-2-5
2.—Wilson, Canada.....	1:42 47-1-5
3.—Bushell, South Africa.....	1:46 8-2-5
4.—Pangman, Canada.....	1:46 39-2-5
5.—Ball, Canada.....	1:47 24-1-5
6.—Walter, England.....	1:50 8-2-5
7.—Houghton, Canada.....	1:50 9-2-5
8.—Dunn, England.....	1:50 21-2-5
9.—Dorken, Canada.....	1:55 24
10.—Green, South Africa.....	1:56 15-2-5
11.—Renold, Canada.....	2:11 6-2-5
Lang, Scotland.....	Retired
Pugh, England.....	Scratched

The race instilled a certain amount of confidence into the team and showed that Bushell would be a more dangerous man to cope with than Walter who last year won the Oxford versus Cambridge match and was second to Campbell against McGill at St. Marguerite.

As the slalom against Oxford and Cambridge was next on the program practice was directed to this end, and a Team versus Managers race was held on December 2nd in which the Team was victorious.

Another practice slalom took place the following day, and on January 4th the first event of the Oxford Cambridge vs McGill meet was held. The Slalom course was laid out by Dr. Amstutz, on the slopes of Corviglia, some 2,500 feet above St. Moritz, the difference of elevation between the start and finish being roughly 350 feet with twenty pairs of flags in between.

Arts Freshmen Advance In Interclass Basketball

Defeat Fourth Year Classicals 31-16 In Playoff Series Yesterday

SKIRTS IN SPORTS

CLASS basketball playoffs advanced a step further towards the final outcome yesterday afternoon in the High School gymnasium, when a flashy Arts I team took the measure of the fourth year Classicals by the convincing score of 31-16. In the other scheduled interclass playoff game a postponement was necessitated and this match will be played sometime during the week.

In yesterday's feature tilt, the Freshmen were at no time in danger of being headed. Both teams started off slow during the first half with little scoring. Half time score stood at 11-3 for the Frosh.

Arts IV Rally

During the second period Manager Woo invoked a fighting spirit in his men and they consequently proceeded to stack up a substantial number of baskets lead by the expert shooting of Freshman Scriber. Arts IV, however, did not fall victim to this spirited onslaught without a rally on their part. Owen and Cohen duplicated the exceptional passing and shooting ability of the Frosh front line and at times it really appeared that the senior Artsmen would contrive to win the match. The Freshmen were not to be denied, however, and continued to extend their total as the game approached a close, while Arts IV on the other hand, faded badly at this stage of the game.

For the Frosh, the exceptional play making of Scriber was a noteworthy feature of their victory. Time and again he dominated the match with his fine play making, and together with Levites and Woo formed a formidable attacking unit. With their record in the league so far, of no losses the Arts I aggregation is the team to beat for the interclass title.

10 Games Remain

Despite their loss yesterday, the Arts IV squad still retain a chance of coming through to the top in the final standing. Each team plays the other four which comprise the playoff teams, once, and in all, ten games remain to be played, including the postponed game of yesterday between Medicine III and Medicine II.

The lineup for yesterday's game is as follows:

Jack McGill Ties With Ken Farmer For Scoring Lead

AS a clear indication to the team with the most scoring punch, no less than five McGill puckmen have eight or more counters to their credit in the statisticians' Senior Group scoring list. Owing to his laxity in scoring in the last few league games, Kenny Farmer is now forced to share top berth in the standing with Jack McGill, both having compiled a total of 12 points in the league games so far. Gordie Crutchfield and Hugh Farquharson follow close on the heels of the leaders, just behind Gaudette of Canadiens and Neville, Royals, while "Big Crutch" is just behind his teammates with 8 previous counters to his credit.

Sociologist Refutes Marriage Theory

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — The theory that economic conditions are causing a large portion of young girls to marry men much older than themselves was refuted recently by Dr. James H. S. Rossard, professor of sociology at the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Rossard made a survey of all the marriage licenses issued in the city and it revealed that in less than eight per cent of the cases the groom was more than ten years older than the bride.

"Joe Colleges" Are Fast Disappearing

GREENCASTLE, Ind. — "Joe Colleges" are disappearing and those that do exist are mainly counterfeit! That, in effect, was the opinion expressed this week by Dean Herbert Smith of DePauw University, who declared, in corroborating results of a survey made by Professor Henry Gratton Doyle of George Washington University, that "there are few 'college' individuals on the average campus — most of them are found in front of the corner drug store back home!"

Dean Clarke Lectures

Dean Douglas Clarke will address the next meeting of the R.V.C. Music Club which is to be held in the Common Room on Thursday, February 2 at 4:05 p.m. Dean Clarke is well-known to Montreal music lovers as director of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra. The subject of his address will be "A Brief Survey of Music." It will show the development of music as a whole and especially the growth of modern music. The lecture is to be illustrated by Dean Clarke on the piano. Tea will be served and the executive extend a hearty welcome to all who wish to attend.

University Administration

T. H. Matthews, registrar of the University, will be the speaker on the regular Graduates' Society broadcast on Friday at 10 p.m. over CKAC. His subject is "The Administration of the University."

Educator Denies Technocratic Boon

Milwaukee—Prof. H. Rexford Schnatter of the University of Wisconsin extension economics department told an audience at the Professional Men's club of Milwaukee that statements by leading technocrats have not all been based on facts.

"We shall have long gray beards if we wait for the razor blades which the technocrats tell us can be made for 30 cents and will last a lifetime," Prof. Schnatter said. "This one example of the technocrats' claims and statistics being at variance with the facts."

"Shakespeare probably didn't spend as much energy writing Macbeth as a man spends in cutting a cord of wood. But who should receive more for his efforts, the woodcutter or Shakespeare?"

"The high priest of technocracy, Howard W. Scott, has named capitalism the price system and given it 18 months to live. Scott's prediction will not be the first prophecy to fail."

Editorial Comment Supports Beatty Consolidation Plan

Editorial opinion throughout Canada has been largely in favor of the proposals advanced by E. W. Beatty, K.C., Chairman and President, Canadian Pacific Railway, looking toward the consolidation of the two railway systems under one management, as the only practical means of relieving the intolerable burden upon the Canadian taxpayers. Mr. Beatty made his proposal in a recent speech before the Toronto Canadian Club, and the following paragraphs from leading editorialists on the subject, clearly indicate the nation-wide scope of supporting public opinion. A total of 47 daily newspapers commented up to January 20th, of which 32 were in favor of consolidation.

"This is far and away the most candid, constructive, and striking contribution to the discussion of our transportation problem that has yet been made."—Montreal Gazette.

"Drastic action appears to be essential if the tremendous burden is to be lifted from the shoulders of our people."—Halifax Herald.

"It is essential with our small population that the railway mileage and service should not outrun the needs of the country."—Halifax Chronicle.

"Mr. Beatty's call for action is timely."—Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

"There is much that appeals in the suggestion of Mr. E. W. Beatty, K.C."—Hamilton Herald.

"We agree with the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway that the country must get down to bed rock."—Mail & Empire, Toronto.

"Mr. Beatty has offered a solution of the railway problem, definite steps to this end should not be delayed."—Border Cities Star, Windsor.

"The most constructive of all suggestions here emanated from Mr. Beatty."—Victoria Colonist.

"He urges the drastic remedies he deems necessary, regardless of every consideration, except the salvation of the two great railway systems and of the State."—Vancouver News.

"Mr. Beatty's carefully considered pronouncement compels serious thought, as to whether the unexplored perils of a monopoly are great enough to require that the Canadian public shall go on paying millions annually for the doubtful privilege of having separate systems."—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

"It would be a middle word confounded if the Duff recommendations were to be adopted by Parliament."—Sherbrooke Daily Record.

"Mr. Beatty's view is obviously in accordance with the general movement as it is coming throughout the world."—Ottawa Citizen.

Vicious Lion Sleeps Calmly As Hunters Ravage Lair

NECESSITY is the mother of invention, and invention is not confined to Tom Swift. Faced by the apparently insurmountable obstacle of a government embargo on the animals of Cirque Briquet the executive of the Players' Club decided upon drastic action. But it seems that fate refuses to smile upon their endeavors.

On the dead of night, several members of the above-mentioned executive crept stealthily to Lafontaine Park, to the section where the various animals are kept. After a hasty survey of the situation, they decided to raid the cage in which they believed was kept a savage African Lion. With the skill of a Jimmy Dale, one of them cautiously picked the lock, and in an instant they stood within the awful portals of the home of a deadly man-eating lion.

All was pitch dark, and they could not see one inch ahead of their nose. One enterprising gentleman, however, had brought a flash-light along with him, and it finally occurred to

ety in front of the McGill cage. Captain Powers checker one of the Varsity men heavily and the face-off was the result. Penalties began to come fast and near the end of the session Varsity were playing three men to McGill's four. The Blue rear-guard held, however, and robbed Gordie Crutchfield of a sure goal when he and Nels worked their way right in.

McGill began to force the play with the start of the second period with Farquharson and Crutchfield throwing scares into the Varsity camp. Coach Bell switched his lines and Kenny Farmer immediately jumped in to the lime-light. Taking the rubber at his own defence Farmer sped down the centre lane flanked by Nels Crutchfield and Robertson. Without slackening his speed he shoved the puck through the Toronto defence and jumped through after it to regain possession and beat Shipp cleanly. Before the howl of a delighted McGill crowd had died down Tommy Robertson put McGill two up by banging in a pass from Farmer. Hendrie was serving time when both goals were scored.

Once recovered from this sudden attack Varsity began to renew their efforts to beat Maurice Powers. The tall custodian was right up to his usual mark and aided by some good work by Gordie Melkiejohn turned aside everything that the Blue squad could muster. A fourth counter was added to the McGill total by Farmer who took his own rebound from a scramble behind the Toronto net and slipped it past Shipp once more, four minutes before the end of the stanza.

Varsity looked tired when they came out for the final twenty minutes. Dewar promptly made things worse for his team when he incurred a five minute rest for protesting a penalty too vigorously. Don Smille made repeated thrusts into McGill territory but met with little success, being unable to work his way past the Red defence. Gordie Crutchfield and Jack McGill gave Shipp some trouble with nice plays that carried right in on top of the Toronto net.

Ken Farmer was forced to retire mid-way through the last frame when he crashed into the boards and injured his knee. Harry Grimes had him back shortly however, after treating the injury. Five minutes from the end Win Cunningham got his second unassisted goal when he took the puck from a scramble near the McGill cage and circled the defence, drawing Powers out and shoving the puck in behind him.

Varsity's hopes jumped for a moment with this tally but they were unable to penetrate the McGill defence. Farquharson and Farmer drew enforced rests but were back before Varsity could take advantage of their absence and the game ended with the score 4-2 for the Redmen.

Kenny Farmer stood out for the Red team but the squad as a whole turned in a creditable performance. Ross Wilson and Rollie Lamb were used frequently and worked well. Smille and Cunningham were the pick of the Blue team with Hendrie close behind them.
